This is Mr. Wayne! He is a policeman! Yesterday it was a bad day for him! He was all wet in the afternoon. There were two car accidents in his area and he was very busy helping people and monitoring the traffic.

At night, when he was in bed, there was a telephone call. It was from the police station. Ten minutes later, Mr. Wayne was in the street again, because there was a great fire in the shopping centre. There were lots of people watching it! It was a mess!

So, it was a bad night too. Mr. Wayne usually sleeps for 7 or 8 hours, but last night he had only three hours in bed. What a poor day! Maybe he can sleep for 12 hours tomorrow!

( ) 36. It wasn't a fine day yesterday.

( ) 37. There were two car accidents in his area last night.

( ) 38. There were many people near the shopping centre.

( ) 39. Last night Mr. Wayne was in bed all night.

( ) 40. Mr. Wayne isn't very busy at night except yesterday.

An important part of world history is the story of communication. In prehistoric times, for example, people did not have books. They did not know much about geography. People were limited. They knew only about themselves and their environment (the land around their homes). Their knowledge of geographical things like mountains and rivers was limited. They did not travel very far. Sometimes, they knew about nearby people and communicated with them. They sent messages in simple ways. Early signals for communication included smoke from fires and the sounds of drums.

Then people formed towns, and then cities, as safe places to live. Soon they began to develop other ways to communicate, to spread information. People began to buy and sell things to one another. Because of their businesses, they developed writing systems to keep records and to send messages. Life was changing for many people. Business caused changes, and so did the invention of the printing press. Many more people learned to read then.
